

British Aware Ship Was Unsafe

Aviation Experts Had Reported
Structural Weaknesses to Authorities.

WOULD NOT CROSS OCEAN

Stories of Aircraft's Weaknesses Are Told as Official Inquiry Starts.

BULLETIN

By United Press Leased Wire
Hull, England.—The accident to the ZR-2 was due to structural weakness. I intended this to be my last flight.

Lieut. Wann, commander of the ZR-2, lying in the hospital here suffering from injuries received in the disaster to the giant dirigible Saturday sent for a police inspector and gave him the above signed statement.

By Charles M. McCann
Howden, England.—The British air service inquiry into the disaster of the ZR-2 was opened at Howden aero drome here Saturday. Vice Air Marshal Salmond presided. America was represented by Lieut. Dyer, U. S. N.
The proceedings were private.

The inquiry starting Saturday will show, if facts are published that some British air men were convinced the ZR-2 never would have crossed the Atlantic, except under "impossibly favorable" weather conditions, I am informed.

I have learned that many British
"fighter than air" authorities, as well
as officers who were killed in the terrible disaster Wednesday believed the ZR-2 to be structurally defective.

In a measure they died heroes, because they felt the giant dirigible to be unsafe and they wished to prove it before an American crew should be lost trying to cross the Atlantic.

Opinions as to the weakness of the ZR-2 only began to be freely expressed after she left Howden on the fatal trip Tuesday.

Feared First Strain
Summarized, they were that the ZR-2 was too long, that she was too weak; the possibilities of a disaster
were realized and fears that the first real strain would prove fatal were freely expressed.

I have seen written reports, conveying these fears to the proper authorities.

Also, I have listened while the ZR-2
was making her trial flight Tuesday
to veterans of the British air service
and of the R-34's successful flight say that they wouldn't cross in the ZR-2
as they were convinced she would never reach America. Incidentally, some of the British officers lacked confidence in the Americans ability to navigate the ship.

Otto Heinie, Germany's leading Zeppelin expert was here and characterized the ZR-2 as a "diver."

All this information was to be laid before the members of the board of inquiry which met Saturday.

ARMED POSSES ON TRAIL OF BANDITS WHO MURDERED 2

Mexicans Invade Arizona Postoffice and Slay Postmaster and His Wife.

By United Press Leased Wire
Tucson, Ariz.—Armed posses are on the trail of seven Mexican bandits who Thursday murdered Frank J. Pearson,
United States postmaster at Ruby,
Ariz., and his wife, and seriously wounded Mrs. Purcell, Pearson's assistant. The bandits may have escaped across the border three miles away.

Mrs. Purcell was taken to Arizona for treatment but was not expected to live. Her five year old daughter, who was with her when the bandits arrived, was unhurt.

The Mexicans are believed to be the same who murdered Alexander Frazer, postmaster at Ruby twenty months ago. A reward of $500 for the capture of Y. Lara, believed to be their leader, has never been claimed.

The civilians found no opposition
when they reached their strongholds.
They were unable to learn who had been responsible for the shooting that caused the alarm.

Sheriff George White of Santa Cruz county, led the posses which swept the country between Ruby and the Mexican border in a vigorous search for the bandits.

The Mexicans appeared at Ruby, Thursday morning, and entering the home of the postmaster, opened fire, killing Pearson and Mrs. Pearson on right and sending a bullet through the head of Mrs. Purcell.

As the small daughter of the later was the only one in the tragedy,
the authorities have not yet obtained a clear account of what occurred.

came the challenger of America for

DEBS MUST STAY IN PRISON UNTIL PEACE IS RATIFIED

Harding Will Make No Decision
on Release Until Senate Has Acted.

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington, D. C.—President Harding will make no decision on the case of Eugene V. Debs, Socialist leader or an amnesty for other political prisoners until after final ratification of the peace treaty with Germany, Attorney General Daugherty announced Saturday after a conference at the White house.

Attorney General Daugherty's recommendation on a pardon for Debs
was placed before the president Saturday. The recommendation was not revealed and it is still subject to change, it was stated.

Whether the president will make a separate decision on the Debs case
eventually or include it in a general proclamation of amnesty, appeared to be still undecided.

Information from official sources
however, inclined to the belief that if Debs is released many others sent to prison for similar offenses will be freed at the same time.

It was indicated that if amnesty is granted, it will affect only the so-called political prisoners and not those who attempted an actual violence against the prosecution of the war.

SOLON'S DAUGHTER WOULD SUCCEED HIM

Mrs. Mason Buck Conducts
Her Campaign on Platform of Education.

Special to Post-Crescent
Chicago.—"Live and let live"
This is the motto of Mrs. Winifred Mason Buck, who is seeking the seat in Congress made vacant by the death of her father, Congressman William C. Mason.

She is conducting her campaign
from a tiny office on the Loop, her ammunition is a $500 campaign fund,
a brief platform and a smile.

The platform, "Legislation cannot cure evils, education can."

Mrs. Buck has been married 17 years and still has her husband, also four children she's 34—and proud of all these statistics. Says she:

"I've raised my children to rely upon themselves. Now they don't need me as they once did. But I've got to be busy. So I've determined upon a career—a congressional career."

"I'm making a clean-cut fight for the post. I shall not contribute as much as a harp to any political machine. That's why I'm running independently."

"But I'm no reformer—not I! The women can smoke if they want to,
they can bob their hair if they want to; and they may wear skirts and bathing suits to please their fancy."

"Extremists get over it when they get common sense, you know. Like puppy love, though, extremism
thrives on opposition."

"Common sense cures extremism.
Common sense comes from education. Therefore, what the country needs is more education."

"I'm going to be a silent congresswoman with a big 'S,' except when I have something to say that's really worth saying. Then the world will listen."

HASTILY FORMED AUTO TOUR ENDS IN JAIL

By United Press Leased Wire
Chippewa Falls, Wis.—A hastily formed automobile tour ended here with four youths in jail for four young people.

Mary Lee, 19 and Mattie Lee, 21,
sisters of Sioux Falls, S. D. and Jos Faast and August Helsenberg of Huron, S. D. were arrested after they had arrived here and jailed on a statutory charge. The girls explained to Judge Jenkins they planned the tour
suddenly and did not come very well prepared. The party had a total of four cents when taken into custody
at a vacant house which they had commandeered. The court thought four months in jail would be the proper chastisement to the unconventional slope ment.

8,000 TONS OF FOOD IS BOUND FOR HUNGRY RUSS

London.—Two American relief ships

administration who arrived here, said Saturday.

One ship proceeded from Hamburg
bound for Revel, and another left Danzig for Petrograd. Eight members of the American relief administration staff are arranging adequate transportation, which has been promised by the bolsheviks, when the ships arrive.

WIFE HELPS POLICE FIND RUNAWAY HUSBAND

By United Press Leased Wire
Minneapolis, Minn.—Alfred Oddy's wife "couldn't bear to shield him," she told police. She gave them a tip which resulted in his recapture after a sensational escape from jail early Saturday.

Oddy was wanted in Vancouver on an assault charge. He slid down an improved rope from a jail window to safety. A companion, Ray Douglas, fell and was killed. Oddy sent word to his wife he would meet her at the Cathoon baths late yesterday. When he appeared police were there.

City Jailer A. B. Needham was suspended pending investigation of the escape of the prisoners.

COPS AND LAWYERS SPLIT FEES PAID BY SPEEDERS

By United Press Leased Wire
Minneapolis, Minn.—Police in collusion with attorneys have been sharing fees collected from victims of auto law and other alleged violations,
according to confessions said to have been made Saturday.

Herbert T. Park, president of the Hennepin County Bar association, said one lawyer confessed that 15 to 17 members of the police force are professional fee splitters with a group of municipal court attorneys.
Disbarment proceedings against the attorneys and "fixing" of the policemen is sought.

Normalcy Just "Around Corner" For Business

By United Press Leased Wire
New York.—American industry is coming back.

Authoritative reports from nine of the nation's basic industries to the United Press show that all but one—shipping—conditions are rapidly improving and that business "normalcy"
is just around the corner.

These reports, briefly summarized
showed the following situation:

Agriculture.—Farmers expect to experience the best season financially
in years despite a general crop shortage.

Railroads.—The steam carriers have "turned the corner" and plan on net
earnings of $500,000,000 for the year.

Meat Packing.—The packers, in practically every line, are experiencing a substantial increase over pre-war business.

Textiles.—Cotton manufacturers are planning on again working full time
by fall and early winter.

Automobiles.—The motor industry is "booming again" after a period of depression.

Shipping.—The American merchant
marine is still seriously crippled and there is little hope for improvement until it receives financial support from the public and legislative backing
from the government.

Coal.—Production of both soft and hard coal is increasing for the first time in two months, and all industries are practically dependent upon fuel.

Steel.—The demand for steel products is increasing and prices appear to be practically stabilized.

Oil.—Petroleum operators are becoming optimistic and plan shortly to develop new properties in addition to reopening old ones temporarily shut down.

SUICIDE TELLS CHIEF HE IS TIRED OF LIFE

By United Press Leased Wire
Marinette, Wis.—The body of an unidentified man was found at the mouth of the river here last night, evidently a suicide. A postal card found on the body greeted Marinette's chief of police.

"Hello chief, and everyone in Marinette. I am damned tired of life and when you get this, I'll be dead. I have lived in Marinette and my wife lives there now."

Efforts to identify the body were made today.

THREE SERIOUSLY HURT IN ILLINOIS MINE WAR

By United Press Leased Wire
Elizabethtown, Ill.—Roselare, a mining village near here was quiet
Saturday after a battle between striking miners and police resulting in the injury of seven miners and one policeman.

Patrolman John Morgan, and two others, who were shot are not expected to live.

The rioting followed an alleged attempt of owners of the Roselare and Fairview mines, to supplant the patronized miners with union men.

BLAINE FROWNS ON STARTING KU KLUX KLAN IN WISCONSIN

By United Press Leased Wire
Madison, Wis.—If the Ku Klux Klan of today is like the Ku Klux Klan of other days, it has no place in Wisconsin.

This is the statement of Gov.
John J. Blaine in a letter to Mayor W. Hoan of Milwaukee, made public Saturday. During the past few days Gov. Blaine has received letters and petitions protesting against the formation of the Ku Klux Klan in this state.

In his letter to Mayor Hoan
the governor declares that an organization which must employ means to suppress the identity of its members can never justify its existence.

U. S. GUIDED CAREFULLY IN PACT PARLEYS

Hughes Drafted Treaty Which Is Certain to Meet With Approval.

FEARED ADVERSE CRITICISM

Negotiations Were Secret in Order to Keep Critics Silent.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1921, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington.—Now that the treaty of peace between Germany and the United States has been signed, it is possible to disclose from government sources some of the inside facts
of the negotiation.

In the first place, Germany was told in courteous but firm terms that the United States could not agree to anything which would place America
on a different footing with respect to Germany than the allied powers have been under the Versailles treaty.

Secondly, the United States government felt it necessary to keep the negotiations secret because of a fear that critics both in this country and Germany would raise issues which would make it impossible to obtain an agreement.

Thirdly, the United States has kept
the allies informed only in an abstract sense of what has been going on and the presumption is that now that the treaty has been negotiated the allies will be fully advised of the agreement. This government, however, fully expects the allies to concur and sees no reason to ask for explicit concurrence because America has not been given any rights or preferences
by Germany which are not enjoyed by the allies. No objections from the allies are therefore anticipated.

Hughes Is Happy
Secretary Hughes was in a happy
frame of mind today. He had successfully piloted the Harding administration over one of the roughest spots
of its whole course. The department of state did not reveal the political difficulties with which Mr. Hughes' task have been beset but it is known that the secretary of state originally favored submitting the Versailles treaty with broad and comprehensive reservations.

Senator Lodge and the "irreconcilable" group are said to have advised Mr. Hughes that still serious had been debating the Versailles pact for two years and wouldn't accept it under any considerations. This compelled the secretary to surrender his first convictions and face the facts of the situation—a possibility of an unending controversy or a compromise that would bring an early peace. The necessity for clearing up America's relations with Germany and helping to ward the stabilizing of economic conditions abroad appeared to Mr. Hughes to be so imperative in the interests of humanity that he abandoned the Versailles pact and drew another treaty which merely referred to the Versailles treaty by mentioning certain articles. It would have been more explicit perhaps to have inserted verbatim the language of those articles
but it might have offended some of the irreconcilables so only the numbers were used for identification purposes. In doing this Mr. Hughes felt that he was simply following out the mandate of the congressional peace resolution which specifically referred to the rights to which America was entitled "under the Versailles treaty."

LASKER WILL CUT SHIP BOARD WASTE

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington, D. C.—Budget Director
Dawes of "Hell and Maria" fame,
Saturday took drastic action to check
an alleged waste of millions of dollars in shipping board operations. An announcement was made that the purchase of supplies for shipping board vessels, now costing about $65,000,000
a year and the sale of surplus supplies
of the board, totalling about $200,000,
was taken from the board and placed under the control of the budget director.

Under orders from the president all new supplies for the board's ships will be purchased by the general purchasing board, recently organized by Dawes. All surplus supplies will be liquidated through the new liquidation board of the budget director. Both of these boards recently were created by executive order to force economy in government departments.

FORD SAVES $5,000 A DAY FOR STEEL COMPANY

By United Press Leased Wire
Crawfordsville, Ind.—Henry Ford
underbid the Monon railroad 69 cents
on the ton for the business of hauling
coal for the United States Steel corporation from Lynch, Ky., to the Gary, Ind., plant, it became known here Saturday.

Ford's bid averaged about $5,000 a day below the bid of the Monon railroad.

Heretofore 150 carloads of coal
have been transported through this city over the Monon for the steel plant. When the contract becomes effective, this coal will be rerouted
through Ohio and will be carried on Ford's railroad on which he recently cut freight rates 20 per cent.

tained there by President Millerand.

Blame Irish Leaders For Deadlock In Discussions

By United Press Leased Wire
London.—England has reached the limit of concessions and almost the limit of endurance. The Irish truce is in danger.

This was the tone of the British press Saturday, discussing the Irish situation in the light of Lloyd George's firm reply to De Valera's letter rejecting the British terms.

The Sinn Fein president asked for a continuance of negotiations upon a basis of new terms but the British government has reiterated emphatically its adherence to its original terms.

The dispute has reached a deadlock. The government Saturday had the unanimous support of the press
for its attitude.

The Irish truce is endangered by the uncompromising attitude of the Sinn Fein. It was generally felt here such discussions, without a trade in concessions, cannot go on indefinitely.
One paper said:

"The government's reply, demanding that De Valera drop 'academic generalities' and come down to 'practical politics' has, it was felt, shifted the onus for the dangerous state of affairs temporarily upon the Sinn Fein."

Political circles here expressed the belief that the government was "stiffening its back" hoping to force the Sinn Fein parliament and leaders eventually to discuss the British proposals in a practical manner and with the present terms as a basis.

WANT YANKS TO COME HOME FROM GERMANY

Administration Points Out Need
of Helping Germany Back
on Her Feet.

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington, D. C.—President Harding wants to bring the American troops back from Germany as soon as possible.

This was made clear in administration quarters Saturday but inquiry developed that it may be necessary to keep the American army of occupation on the Rhine until the treaty with Germany is ratified.

Some officials, however, emphasize that peace has not been concluded with Germany until both nations have ratified the treaty and they suggest that it might be wise to keep troops
there until the reichstag approves the pact.

In certain high quarters the need for helping Germany was pointed out.
One official emphasized that Germany has groined to everything the United States has asked and that now the United States ought to turn aid her back to economic stability. The whole world, this official added, will be in a state of unrest until Germany settles down.

BRICKYARD ROAD CONTRACT GOES TO GREUNKE BROS.

Construction of Highway Is to Be Completed in a Month,
Contractor Says.

Work on the Brickyard road will start immediately following the award of the contract for its construction to Greunke Brothers of Appleton.

The contract was let by the county highway and bridge committee in a meeting at the courthouse Friday afternoon.

Greunke Brothers' bid was the lowest of four. It offered construction of the Brickyard road, for $24,466.26 and for Carver st for $14,194.60. Itemized
these figures included grading at $1
per cubic yard, construction of culverts at $22 per cubic yard and the laying of concrete pavement at $2.14 per square yard. This bid was $2,000 lower than the next highest bid and $5,000 lower than the maximum bid.

Considerable construction material
is already on the ground and it is expected that if weather conditions are favorable, the work will be completed within a month.

Contracts for two bridges was also let by the committee. The Verbeten bridge work was let to the Simpson
Parker company of Appleton at $21.65 per cubic yard or a total of $2,005
and the contract for the Kaukauna town line bridge was also let to the same company for $1,280.07, which is the same rate per yard as for the Verbeten bridge. Work is now progressing on the Kaukauna town line road
where concrete pavement is being laid. Graveling of the Bear Creek-Leoman road began recently.

ERZBERGER MURDER STARTS REACTION

By United Press Leased Wire
Berlin.—A new era in German history may arise from the murder of Mathias Erzberger.

The crime has started a wave of wrath throughout Germany against reactionism, and against the military parties.

President Loche of the German reichstag, informed a meeting of party leaders that the shooting of Erzberger, as he was walking in the Black Forest with a single companion, was undoubtedly a political crime. The deed may have serious consequences, Loche declared.

The reactionary elements in Germany were bitterly opposed to Erz-
berger's resuming active leadership of the Center party. He was believed to have had the most influence in persuading the Center party to agree to support the Wirth government if the latter signed the treaty with America.

SMALL CROWD HEARS TALK OF MINOR WORKING LAWS

About 25 businessmen and parents day evening at the vocational school for the purpose of explaining the new laws regarding attendance of children between the ages of 14 and 18 in the vocational school. A very small representation of women was present, in fact the attendance was much less than was expected.

There was considerable adverse criticism and kicking on the part of some of the parents who disliked the idea of their sons and daughters losing "time" and consequently receiving less pay.

CHILDREN MUST HAVE MILK

Experts say that every child should have a quart of milk a day. Adults can get along with a pint. This fluid food, probably the most important taken into the human system, balances the ordinary ration, making sure that the body is supplied with all the elements vital to its health and strength.

But deadly dangers lurk in some milk. How can you tell whether milk is good or bad? Not by looking at it or by tasting it. It is a duty to yourself and your family to provide protection against these dangers.

Dr. Milton J. Rosenau, Professor of Preventive Medicine and Hygiene at Harvard University, formerly Director of the Hygienic Laboratory of the United States Public Health Service and a world authority on milk, has prepared an illustrated booklet entitled "All About Milk."

The facts contained in this booklet will benefit any individual who reads it. Knowledge means health—often life itself. Our Washington Information Bureau will secure a copy of this booklet free, and mail it to any reader who fills out the coupon below and encloses two cents in stamps for return postage. Be sure to write or print name and address clearly.

Calf Club Members Will Carry Lunches on Trip to Milwaukee.

At 10 o'clock next Tuesday morning a big truck driven by George Schaefer will roll from the First National bank corner. It will head in the direction of Milwaukee and it will carry practically all of the 32 boys and girls who participated in the First National Bank Calf club contest. Sharply at 10 o'clock the children will be loaded into the truck, bag, baggage and lunch boxes. William Strassburger of the First National bank will act as official starter. The truck will go by way of Chilton, Plymouth and Cedarburg. Lunch will be eaten enroute. The truck will arrive at the boys and girls camp at the fair grounds at 5 o'clock. The party will be met when it enters the grounds by Paul O. Nyhus who will have arranged previously to complete all necessary arrangements.

Upon their arrival the children will have half an hour to wash off the dust of travel before supper is served at 5:30. After supper the evening will be spent in getting each child comfortably settled and in getting ready for the next day's exertions. Wednesday's program will conform to that scheduled by the camp. At 10 o'clock Thursday morning, the big truck will start on the return journey. Arrangements will be made to have dinner on the way. The party will arrive at the First National bank corner about 6:30 in the evening.

Each child will carry two heavy blankets, flannel sleeping garments, comb, soap, towel, tooth brush and toothpaste and a drinking cup.

NATIONAL C. OF C. FIGHTS CASH BONUS

Commercial Organization Says
Pension Should Be Paid
Later in Life.

Another slap was dealt the proposed national cash bonus bill Thursday in a statement issued by the national chamber of commerce, a copy of which has been received by the Appleton Chamber of Commerce.

The statement declares that the proposed cash bonus to soldiers would cost more in one transaction than the government has paid out in pensions during its entire existence. Up to June 30, 1919, the statement reads, total pensions paid by the United States government amounted to $5,800,000,000 while the proposed bonus would take $2,500,000,000 out of the national treasury at one sweep.

Three fourths of the veterans who would get the proposed bonus never saw any fighting, declared the statement. One-half of the men who would benefit were in the service only six months or less before the armistice was signed. The statement declares that since the close of the war, the government has spent $1,500,000,000 in benefits to former service men and state bonuses and benefits during the same period have amounted to $184,000,000.

"It must be evident to a thoughtful country," the statement said, "that the time is coming when there may be a legitimate demand for a genuine service pension in behalf of those veterans who will later need assistance because of physical impairment resulting from the war. Prudence would therefore dictate a policy of conserving the resources of the nation against the time when such pensions may be needed rather than pouring out billions of dollars now to able bodied men who are in the prime of their existence and better fitted than ever, because of military training, to engage in their life work."

Demand For "Main Street" Exceeds Library Resources

Ten Copies Are in Circulation
and Long "Reserved List" Is Maintained.

"Is 'Main Street' in today? I'm so anxious to read it. All my friends are reading it and I feel like a back number. Not in today? Oh, I'm so disappointed. Will you please add my name to the reserved list?"

This is a daily occurrence at the Appleton Free Public library where "Main Street," the latest book from the pen of Sinclair Lewis is receiving the book has been in such continual demand that the library has been forced to buy new copies. There are ten in circulation at present seven of which are in general circulation and three have long "reserved lists."

These books are in use all of the time, which is quite remarkable as the library never before bought more than five copies of any popular fiction book previously.

According to Mrs. Florence Day, chief librarian, everybody is trying to get it. She said that the book had actually swept the country like "wild fire." Many people want to read it because it is so popular and they are curious to know what it is all about. Many many persons who start it do not finish it.

Similar characters to those found in the book may be found in practically any small town of about 1,000 inhabitants.

Although the book is having a prodigious popularity at present and some of the city libraries are circulating as

CABBAGE CROP IN COUNTY LOOKING UP

Cabbage Specialist Finds Evidences of Plant Diseases
in This County.

Prospects for a good cabbage crop are much better in Outagamie-co. than in several other counties in the state according to a statement by Prof. R. E. Vaughn, plant disease specialist of the Wisconsin state college of agriculture, who in company with Paul O. Nyhus inspected cabbage fields in the county on Thursday.

Prof. Vaughn is observing the different measures which are being used in various parts of the state to eradicate and control plant diseases. A number of fields visited were found to be infested with maggots. The owners thought that the sickly condition of the plants was due to black rot. These maggots had developed in the seedling plants before the plants had been transplanted to the fields. They eat the hairlike roots which spread from the main root and through which the plant draws its sustenance and prevent it from thriving.

Some black rot was found in the county. One 2-acre field in Grand

Chute was found to be a total loss from this cause. On the other hand, the professor spoke of many fields as being "very excellent." Most cabbage seed used in the county last spring had been treated with corrosive sublimate to eradicate black rot and the fact that plants grown from treated seed are now afflicted with the disease is explained by Prof.

Vaughn to be due to other factors which often escape consideration in several cases where black rot occurred on treated seed the disease was traced back to the fertilizer used on the field.

THE SEPARATE PEACE
The conclusion of a separate peace with Germany marks the culmination of a policy originally conceived for the express purpose of discrediting President Wilson personally and the Democratic party impersonally, under the leadership of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge. Had it not been for the record which committed the party to a course of action hostile to that proposed by the preceding administration, there never would have been a separate treaty with Germany, and we would have taken our place with the allies in the making of peace, subject to such reservations and interpretations as we desired to make, but keeping faith with them and discharging our obligations to them in the main considerations for which the war was fought.

That Mr. Hughes as secretary of state has worked out a separate treaty solely for the vindication of a negative political policy is well established by the record. This duty was imposed upon him by exigencies which he could not escape. On October 14th, 1920, toward the close of the campaign, thirty-one distinguished leaders of American political thought issued an appeal to the voters to support Mr. Harding for president on the ground that it would insure the Americanization of the League of Nations and acceptance of the peace treaty. In this appeal it was stated that the election of Mr. Harding would mean the "frankly calling upon the other nations to agree to changes in the proposed agreement which will obviate this vital objection (to article 10) and other objections less the subject of dispute." The Republican party is bound by every consideration of good faith to pursue such a course until the declared object is attained. The conditions of Europe make it essential that the stabilizing effect of the treaty already made between the European powers shall not be lost by them and that the necessary changes be made by changing the terms of the treaty rather than by beginning entirely anew. That course Mr. Harding is willing to follow.

The appeal was especially directed to Republican supporters of the League of Nations and the peace treaty. Two of the signers are members of Mr. Harding's cabinet — Charles E. Hughes, secretary of state, and Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce. In negotiating a separate treaty Mr. Hughes stands in the light of repudiating a principle solemnly announced to the people of the United States that the stabilizing effect of the treaty already made should be preserved and that it was more desirable to change the terms of the treaty than to begin entirely anew. The only logical explanation of his contradictory course is that he has bowed to the political ends sought by those who set out to discredit President Wilson.

After Mr. Harding was elected president, he stated in his address to congress on April 12th that "it would be idle to declare for separate treaties of peace with the Central powers on the assumption that these alone would be adequate, because the situation is so involved that our peace engagements cannot ignore the Old World relationship and the settlements already effected, nor is it desirable to do so in preserving our own rights and contracting our future relationships. The wiser course would seem to be the acceptance of the confirmation of our rights and interests as already provided and to engage under the existing treaty."

The fact that a Republican senate twice voted to ratify the Versailles treaty, including the League of Nations, with certain reservations, and that President Harding himself voted for ratification, still further confounds the pretensions of good faith in the record as a whole. Certainly it is an inconsistent record and bears all the earmarks of political expediency. Regardless of what the treaty with Germany does or does not secure for the United States we believe the people of this country would have preferred to conclude peace in conjunction with their associates in the war and that history will adjudge this to have been the more honorable and the better course.

DE VALERA'S REPLY
The latest development in the Irish situation, namely, the reply of De Valera to Lloyd George, leaves the controversy substantially in its original form. The Irish Republican president insists upon recognition of the complete independence of his country, together with its severance from British connection, unless union might be brought about subsequently by sovereign engagement. It is true that De Valera's note leaves the way open to further negotiations, but it does not appear that a way has yet been found for composing the vital differences which stand in the path of peace. Lloyd George insists that De Valera is playing with phrases to suggest that the principle of government by consent of the governed compels recognition of Ireland as a foreign power. De Valera replies that nothing else will satisfy Ireland.

If that is the case, the war must go on, for it would seem that if there were no basis on which Ireland would consent to remain an integral part of the British empire, the proposal for an armistice and a resort to diplomacy were in the first place futile. If such a position were adhered to the end it could only be predicated on recognition of the Irish republic as a foreign nation. That demand not having been made upon the British government as a preliminary to negotiations, it seemed that something less might satisfy the national aspirations of Ireland.

The hope of the world for peace does not lie in the arbitrary imposition of British sovereignty over Ireland, but rather in a solution of the problem which shall establish Irish independence in association with Great Britain for the promotion of common defense and such other interests as are mutual. If that basis cannot be found the struggle must continue and the sympathy, if not the judgment, of the world will remain with Ireland's aims.

PERSONNEL OF THE CONFERENCE
That the French government and people are impressed with the momentous possibilities involved in the Washington disarmament conference, is indicated by the announcement that Premier Briand will head the French delegation.

In France, the premier is virtually the head of the government, the president being even more of a figurehead than is the king in England. It is extremely probable that Great Britain and Italy will follow the French precedent and send delegations headed by their premiers and thus avoid the disadvantage of being outranked.

And it would not be surprising if Japan decided that the advantage of being represented at Washington by its highest responsible official, capable of making final decisions, outweighed all other considerations.

With Secretary Hughes heading the American, and prime ministers heading the foreign delegations, we should have a conference dignified with imposing power and capacity, and one capable of handling the great subjects to come before it with all the results a confident world expects.

TODAY'S POEM
By Eberton Braley
AFTERWARDS.
When all my songs are finished
When all my dancing's done,
Still, still, quite undiminished
Shall shine the golden sun;
And still, from garden closes,
When I am done with words,
Shall come the breath of roses,
The twitter of the birds.
Each day will still be bringing
The dancing, light as air,
The kisses and the singing,
But I shall not be there!
And so the lifting measure
Of song or dancing tune
Shall then bring me no pleasure
Beneath the sun or moon;
So now—while I can hear it,
I make my blithest song,
And, with the gayest spirit,
I dance my way along;
And till my days are over
I'll have my joyous fling,
For when I'm under clover
I cannot dance or sing!
CHINESE MAIDS SHOW ANKLES.
Only a decade ago the most flirtatious Chinese maid whose smiles ever started a tong war would not think of letting Caucasian eyes rest upon her trim oriental ankle, any more than would her suitor so avoing without wearing a queue.
The Chinese revolution cut off the queues. And now Dame Fashion has clipped a full eight inches off the pretty pantaloons of the celestial maidens, revealing for the first time on the streets of San Francisco's Chinatown pretty ankles and a bit more of the entrancing bits of silk as any American girl can wear.
"Sure, we like 'em, all same American girl," was what Rose Gee had to say about her new silk stockings and tiny pumps which showed beneath her lavender silk pantaloons, embroidered in white.
"See, they pretty," she added, coyly, looking downward.

WHY BOILS REPEAT.
Seeing how carelessly folks do handle their boils and slight wounds I do not wonder that the boils keep cropping out again and again or that the minor wounds heal so poorly or terminate so frequently in serious "blood poisoning." I wonder, instead, that so many victims of boils or wounds do manage to escape these unhappy complications.
Since boils are little abscesses, and abscesses are directly caused by certain types of bacteria which have the faculty of inducing the formation of pus, it should be clear that the implantation of the germs is the important thing in the culture of boils. Germs cannot travel by their own effort. They must be conveyed to the spot where they do their work. There is no better conveyor of germs than the inquisitive fingers of the victim himself. It is by the victim's own fingers that the germs from boil number one are usually conveyed to a fresh field and planted there to produce boil number two, and so on. Sometimes the germs are carried from boil number one by the victim's clothing, such as the friction of a collar band. Sometimes the germs are carried to fields afresh by the ideal culture medium which is popularly esteemed yet never advisable as an application to a boil, the poultice.
If boil number one were never handled nor subjected to the friction of clothing or unskillfully applied dressings, nor encouraged by flaxseed poultices and uncleanly salves, boil number two would not develop. The ideal way to handle a boil would be to handle it at all, but only expose the region involved to direct sunlight. In polite society this is not always feasible. A dressing of some kind should then be applied to protect the boil from the friction of clothing or from contact with other things.
For comfort and effectiveness perhaps the best dressing consists of many folds of gauze (fine cheese-cloth) wet with a rather strong saline solution, such as a heaping tablespoonful of common salt and a heaping teaspoonful of sodium citrate in a pint of boiled water. This gives all the relief any poultice can give, without encouraging germ life. It aids drainage when the boil breaks or is about to break. A fresh compress should be applied as often as the dressing becomes soiled, and the compress should be moistened with a few spoonfuls of the solution often enough, day and night to keep it wet. Over the wet compress some oiled silk or waxed paper may be applied and the whole held in place either with a snug bandage or strips of adhesive plaster cut after first application and pinned to tapes to permit easy change of the dressing without changing the plaster.
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Hay Fever.
Question—Please inform me where and when I may have the test made to see what kind of serum I need for hay fever. It begins about August 20 and runs on till late October. (Mrs. F. J. O.)
Answer—Your own physician can make the skin reaction tests to determine which pollen is responsible for your attacks and then administer to you minute gradually increasing doses of the causative pollen extract to immunize you. If your doctor does not treat such cases he can refer you to one who does.
The Gold Stain.
Question—I have been told that the human body contains a number of acids. I have been wearing a necklace made of 14K gold, the kind they call green gold, and at times this colors my neck as though a brass ring had rubbed the skin. The jeweler tells me it is the acid in my system which causes this. It was an expensive necklace and has withstood the acid test. I wear a ring of "white gold," but it never stains my fingers (R. I. A.)
Answer—Such stains from gold jewelry are due to the base metal fixed with the gold—copper, silver, etc.—which reacts with sulphur in the perspiration or oil secretion of the skin to form a sulphid. So-called "oxidized silver," for instance, is a sulphid of silver. Fourteen karat is not very pure gold, though your necklace may be a valuable piece of jewelry. The acids in the body have nothing to do with the staining of the skin by the base metal in an alloy; nor has this staining any significance regarding the state of health.

STILL MAKE USE OF BLOWGUN.
The blowgun is still popular for hunting birds among the Kossut Indians in Louisiana. The weapon consists of a tube, usually of cane, about six feet long, rubbed smooth on the inside with an implement made for the purpose and careful straightened with the aid of fire. Slender, pointed darts about eight inches long are used as ammunition, each one wrapped neatly along a third of its length with thistle-down or cotton to make it fit the inside of the tube. The hunter placed a dart in the tube, which he raises to his lips and with which he takes careful aim at his game; then with a quick puff of breath he drives the little dart flying with sufficient force to impale and kill a small bird or squirrel.
HIGH LIVING.
He was an Englishman, and it was his first introduction to the American Sunday night supper, with all sorts of good things on the table at the same time. With an air of bewilderment he helped himself to everything that came passed him and the waiter, by attacking his loaded plate. Picking up a fish ball in his fingers, he applied a generous smear of honey to it and bit into the new combination. A look of horror overspread his features, and he turned to his neighbor and put a warning hand on his arm.
"I say, steady on old chap!" he whispered, after a copious drink of water, "there's something dead in this bun! Don't try it, whatever you do!" Youth's Companion.

Immigrant Finds A Backer
By Frederic J. Haskin
New York City—The widespread prevalence of unemployment in this country is proving no check to the incoming tide of aliens. The green Goddess of Liberty continues to beckon with her torch, although the "No More Help Wanted" sign occurs with dismal frequency throughout the land. Every liner brings in its hundreds of immigrants, and the grants who have flooded the industrial dereliction of their respective countries only to encounter a similar, if less desperate depression here.
While most of them are destined to join friends or relatives, the great majority have no definite assurances that they will be able to obtain work. The absence of any such project, however, does not seem to bother them. They are more than willing to take their chances with the 5,700,000 Americans now out of jobs. Their immigration, they feel, is by no means a case of jumping out of the frying pan into the fire.
Talk with some of these self-confident aliens at Ellis Island, and you will better understand the spirit of grim hopefulness which inspires them. A good many are of a much higher type than that which demanded entrance to this country before the war. A surprising number of Norwegians have been coming in, for instance, as well as Finns, Danes, and Dutch farmers, but, of course, they do not begin to match numbers with the Italians, Russians, and Czech-Slovaks. All of the immigrants manifest eagerness to obtain work, but they are particular as to the kind. Scarcely any will consider going on farms. They want to stay in the big cities and go into the factories and shops.
Wandering about Ellis Island, the reporter observed a group of tall, husky Norwegians who were headed for the lumber camps of the Northwest, several Germans who had been promised work in bakeries and delicatessen shops in New York, a silent, patient group of Dutch peasants who were going to take care of the cows by the Dutch immigration headquarters, and a few Czech-Slovaks, who were destined for shop work in Chicago. As far as could be ascertained, the great mass of others had nothing further in view than a welcome from friends and relatives.
Some Typical Cases
One of the Czech-Slovaks said that his brother had found a factory job for him in Chicago. He spoke enthusiastically in giant Slavic syllables, which an interpreter neatly converted into plain English. In the old country, the man explained, he had made only forty cents a day, but that had been on a farm. He laughed scornfully when it was suggested that he might find farming more congenial than factory work in this country.
No, the new immigrants know what they want in the way of work, and, as a matter of fact, they stand fairly good chance of getting it. They have all the advantages on their side when it comes to competing with American-born workmen. The immigrant may not be able to speak English and he may not be acquainted with American customs, but these things are scarcely necessary. Upon arriving in this country, he is met by friends or relatives who speak his language and who immediately escort him to a colony which speaks it also. He can read the signs on its stores and he can read its newspapers. There he finds people from his own province, perhaps from his own little town—people who even know his family. They cluster around him and pay him extravagant compliments while he gives them the latest news from home. There is (alas, Mr. Volstead win a fair rule and food of the peculiar native kind to which he has been accustomed. Somewhere in the district, moreover, there is almost always a relative who stands in with one of its prominent men—a man who controls many jobs and knows the location of many others. This important personage is frequently an American-born member of the race who, resisting assimilation, has remained in his native colony because it yielded him abundant profits. If the immigrant fails to obtain employment through him, there is always the foreign employment agency to which he may apply.
Thus it may be seen that the plight of the newly-arrived immigrant is by no means as harrowing as some are wont to depict it. Compare it, indeed, with the lot of the average unemployed American workman, who, lacking this racial clannishness, is an isolated unit in the community, and its superior advantages will be apparent.
In the past, perhaps, before large foreign colonies were built up in all of our big cities, the immigrant's struggle was unduly arduous, but since the war, conditions have improved for him. For one thing, he is no longer cast off like deadwood from his native land and left to drift for himself by an alien government. In the eyes of both his mother and foster countries he has become a figure of importance. While the United States is proceeding industriously with its Americanization campaign, European nations are building up strong nationalization programs.
The Homeland Helps
Before the war, the chief European nations were too powerful and self-complacent to worry over the emigration of their surplus population. The Western Hemisphere, they felt, was more than welcome to it. There was, they decided, no necessity for a definite emigration policy. The war, however, revealed two disagreeable facts: that each nation was harboring disloyal aliens within its borders, and that its own loyal sons on foreign soil had been ignored until they were beyond reclaiming.
Every important European nation now has an immigration policy influenced by these two discoveries. Every nation is encouraging the emigration of alien nationalities from its borders: which explains the tremendous exodus of Hungarians from Czech-Slovakia and of Jews from all of Europe. Every nation is refusing to receive back in its fold aliens who left it during the war to fight for their mother countries. Every nation is determined to keep track of its own native emigrants: to see that they are well protected in foreign lands, and thus win and keep their loyalty. Holland has already called a conference of European states to consider uniform plans for affording such protection, and it has been one of the first countries to open immigration bureaus in foreign cities.
According to Frances Kellor, an American woman who recently toured Europe with a view of studying its emigration policies, many countries have enlarged the powers of their consulates in the United States to protect immigrants, and they are supporting societies and homes and movements to look after their nationals. "They are encouraging them to apply to their consulates for advice and assistance," she says. "In this work they have able support from a considerable part of the foreign language press in this country."
"They mean to control the interests of their immigrants by advancing their economic interests, by the establishment of parish schools; by supporting the foreign language press through advertising, and by fostering the establishment of cultural societies—all for the purpose of perpetuating the language, ideals, culture and interests of the native land."
"They mean also to keep in touch with their nationals by social events, and, so far as the United States is concerned, it will see more and more distinguished members of these races visiting their nationals here as guests of honor, for the purpose of preserving home ties. They mean at least to consider the advisability of giving their nationals abroad representation in the home country. They favor the establishment of immigrant banks and branch banks in immigrant countries where the native language is spoken to stimulate the transmission of money home and investments in the home land."
In other words, the future of European nation is going to lend its man power to promote the development of a competitive country. It will let its men go to relieve an economic strain, but it will demand them back, with interest, when the proper time comes. This definite policy may not be pleasant for the United States, but it is fine for the immigrants. No wonder our latest alien newcomers are not worried about finding jobs. They have the strength of their respective nations behind them.

Q. What is "lemon squash?" H. D. G.
A. Lemon squash is the term used in England for lemonade.
Q. Who was the original Joe Miller? G. T. K.
A. Joe Miller was an English comedian, born in London in 1854, who died in 1938. John M. Kelly compiled the Joe Miller book which is attributed to Joe Miller about a year after the death of the latter.
Q. Can you settle a dispute by stating what a Guineaman is? H. F. A.
A. A ship used in trading to and from coast of Guinea is known as a Guineaman.
Q. What is the funny bone so called? B. G. S.
A. The funny or crazy bone is not a bone, but the ulnar nerve which passes by the internal condyle of the humerus. It is comparatively unprotected, and a blow upon it gives rise to a peculiar electric thrill on the ulnar side of the hand. It is from this tingling sensation that it derives its name.
Q. Why are all racing cups called loving cups? J. R. S.
A. All racing cups are not necessarily loving cups. A loving cup is one having two or more handles, generally constructed of silver. The custom of the loving cup is traced back to the days of wassailing. It was continued after the introduction of Christianity. The monks could not wash their bowls, the "poculum caritatis" meaning loving cup. The ceremony of drinking from one cup and passing it around was observed in the Jewish paschal supper.
Q. What is meant by mountain or aviator's sickness? H. S. V.
A. The effects of rarefied air produced on aviators in rapid ascensions is similar to those observed in mountain climbers. The symptoms during the returns from great heights are vertigo, ringing in the ears, frontal headache, chilliness and deafness. At very great heights hemorrhages may occur.

OLIVE BRANCH SOCIETY DEBATES ON Y. M. C. A.

"Resolved that the Y. M. C. A. is not an orthodox Christian organization," was the subject of a debate at the educational meeting of the Olive Branch society Friday evening. Carl Damsheuser, supporting the affirmative, was given the judges' decision. Fifty members attended the meeting. The negative side of the subject was presented by Orville Hegner, Lloyd Doerflinger, educational leader, directed the program.

Mr. Damsheuser quoted frequently from the Bible to show that the Y. M. C. A. is not an orthodox Christian association because it does not confess nor follow a definite Christian creed. In the formal discussion following the debate, the members of the society agreed that the Y. M. C. A. is a help to the community in that it furnishes athletic activity for boys and men but they expressed their belief that as far as religious activities or development is concerned the young people of the society should confirm themselves to their church.

A social hour followed the discussion and refreshments were served. The girls of the society have arranged a surprise outing for the boys to be given Sunday afternoon and evening.

The Nuisance Fairies

As Nancy and Nick and Chick Chickaree (the red squirrel) were hiding behind the maple bush watching Will Woodpecker sneak into Chick's house to eat up his maple sirup sap there came such a flash and a crash that the whole three of them fell over backward.

At the same instant Mr. Sprinkle-Blow, the weatherman, landed beside them with his magic umbrella upon which he had sailed down from the sky. As usual, he looked worried to death. Really Mr. Sprinkle-Blow was the very worriedest person you ever knew about. It folks only knew the trouble he had with his Nuisance Fairies, and the time he had keeping things in order, I'm sure they never would think of blaming him the way they do for this and that and the other thing.

Well, just now he was looking more worried than ever, and when he saw everybody in a heap it didn't help any.

Gems Take Death Toll

And so that splendid and mysterious treasure was loosed once more to work evil in the world!

Personally I was delighted to have it removed from the Lorimer environment. Whether the ex-kaiser had merely put it into cold storage on this side of the Atlantic wasn't a bit important to me, but if it was intended to be gold and the funds used to promote revolution and bolshevism was very important. I put my faith in the federal authorities to track it down, and I rejoiced that our men had survived the night.

"Wherever it may go, it will carry death with it," I meditated. "One of the conspirators died an hour ago on my terrace." Then I said aloud, "Maybe it will exterminate all who trail it!"

"I'm mighty relieved to get the damned stuff off our hands," said Daddy. "One life was enough for one night."

A long, loud rapping interrupted him.

"My men at last," said Morrison. There was half a regiment of men, it seemed to me, but they faded into a background for one held up between two.

"I'm done for, chief!" The wounded man addressed Morrison.

I perceived that it was the man who had driven our car through the park. I gave him one glance, then ran upstairs for Dr. Spence. Returning, I heard the end of his story:

"At the end of this side of the garage, the car was held up. I was thrown out—shot on the ground like a dog!"

Bob leaned over him—supported his head—and asked:

"Was a bag left in the car?"

"Didn't see—" he mumbled. "They took my cap and coat—and badge. I crawled back to report—" He fainted. I worked with Spence to restore him and came near to collapse myself.

My husband saw and led me to a seat. It was so good to be taken care of! Taken care of by him—for the last time I made the most of the chance.

Next day was packed with events. Our car was found, abandoned, in one of the residence sections of the town. I spent the day with several federal officials. I made a plan of the cellars and explained the tricks of various doors. Bob, Daddy and Spence gave evidence concerning the quantity and kind of war material in the arsenal which was buried in the center of the city.

The Certels mansion was not invaded at once. It was discreetly watched. The caretaker had disappeared. Evidently he had sent news of the discovery to the plotters who had formerly used the cellars as a headquarters.

Nobody turned up at the place for days. Finally a single thief came by night and was caught in the wine vault. He was a red revolutionist. When cornered, he betrayed the new meeting place of his fellows.

"Scotched! Another peril to America and to civilization—scotched!" That was all that Daddy Lorimer would ever tell about what happened to the political conspirators.

Morrison's hunt for the jewels was another matter.

Save Vegetables

Don't let the late vegetables go to waste. Make mixed pickle or a canned vegetable chowder of them. And if you must market for your vegetables remember the dress that was made of a remnant of this and a remnant of that and pick up your green stuffs in the same way.

Mixed Pickles

One quart small white onions, 1 quart sliced green tomatoes, 1 large cauliflower, 4 green peppers, 1 quart lima beans, 1 quart string beans, 1 head celery, 1 quart chopped cucumbers, 4 quarts water, 2 cups salt, 1 cup flour, 6 tablespoons mustard, 1 table spoon turmeric, 1 cup sugar, 2 quarts vinegar.

Make a brine of the salt and water and pour over all the prepared vegetable except the lima beans, celery and string beans. Let stand 24 hours. Add beans and celery and heat enough to scald. Drain and throw away liquid. Mix flour, mustard and turmeric with enough vinegar to make a thin paste. Add sugar and remaining vinegar. Boil until the mixture thickens. Add vegetables and scald thoroughly. Put into sterilized glass jars and seal.

Ripe Cucumber Chowchow

Twelve large ripe cucumbers, 1 medium sized head of cabbage, 1 quart small onions, 12 pounds celery seed, 14 pound mustard seed, 1 pound sugar, 2 quarts vinegar, 2 red peppers.

Pare and take out seeds of cucumbers. Chop, quarter and chop cabbage. Slice onions. Sprinkle cucumbers, onions and cabbage with salt and let stand over night. Remove seeds from peppers and chop. Add with celery and mustard seeds to vegetables. Heat sugar and vinegar to the boiling point. When lukewarm pour over vegetable mixture. Let stand until cold. Put in preserving kettle and scald. Pour into sterilized glass jars and seal.

Lima beans, sweet corn and tomatoes are delicious canned as a chowchow. Each vegetable should be blanched and cold dipped separately combined in the cans and the whole processed for three hours. Use 1 cup beans, 1 cup corn and 2 cups tomatoes. One teaspoon salt to each quart.

Miss Martha Leisinger and Mrs. Martha Lueckel left for Delano, Minn., on Friday and will spend a week's vacation there visiting friends and relatives.

Cucumbers have a way of hiding under the leaves and ripening in spite of the most alert cucumber gatherer. But ripe cucumbers make a very good "chowchow," so salvage them and keep on pickling.

"HEIRESS" GETS BOYS IN TROUBLE

Induces Youths to Steal Car to Take Her Away From Husband.

Manitowoc, Wis.—Manitowoc's million dollar heiress has again succeeded in attracting attention with her mythical million this time at Marshfield. The young lady figured in sensational news reports several months ago when she claimed she had been willed a fabulous sum of money by a rich relative.

The heiress arrived in town with three men from Marshfield who had taken an automobile without permission from a garage there in order to accommodate a rich woman who was running away from her husband. The three men were held by the police until the owner of the car arrived in the city but she was not arrested.

When Jerry Birge, owner of the car and proprietor of a garage at Marshfield, accompanied by Charles Nornington deputy sheriff reached Manitowoc to claim the stolen car, he related how the heiress put it over.

The three men he alleges asked Birge to rent his car for a trip to Appleton and when refused left the garage. Later they returned and in a confidential manner told Birge that they wanted the auto to drive a million dollar heiress who was eluding her husband to Manitowoc. Again they were refused he stated. Later on the same day during the absence of Birge from his garage he alleges they took the car and with the local girl left Marshfield.

Arriving at Manitowoc the woman it is stated applied at a hotel for a room and was refused. The men were arrested and will face prosecution at the hands of Birge as well as the girl's husband who is at Marshfield.

"WHIP MENASHA" IS KAUKAUNA'S SLOGAN

Electric City Squad Wants to Make It Three Wins From Twin Cities.

Kaukauna—Optimism is rampant in the camp of Yakley Miller's diamond team over the same Sunday afternoon with Menasha the only team which seems to be looking for the Kaukauna squad. The local game is just as strong now as at any time in the season and even though Menasha is loaded to the muzzle for the home team seems to be the favorite.

Kaukauna has won two games from Menasha and the watchword for this week is make it three. The task will not be hard if the boys get a little pep and play baseball for the team and not for the individual. The game with Appleton last Sunday was an incriminating exposure of playing which the Electric City has a "rotten ball club" and it is up to the members of the team to prove they can play.

Grassell will occupy the mound next Sunday and Steegman will backstop. It is generally conceded that Grassell is some pitcher and it certainly is not his fault that Kaukauna lost the last few games. Bartlett crick in the field of the Shavano team will play second base and Johnson will be shifted to first. Schelski, former Menasha player, will cover short stop and Renz also from the Menasha club will play in the field.

Play Return Game

The fathers base ball team of St. Mary church will play a return game at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Kaukauna league diamond with the Holy Name society team of Freedom church. The fathers badly defeated the Freedom men on their own grounds two weeks ago and feel they will not have much trouble in repeating. Batters for Kaukauna will be Van Dyke and Smith and for Freedom Vandenberg and Carver.

Early Football Start

A meeting of high school boys who intend to try out for the football team this fall will be held Friday, Sept. 2 in the assembly room of the high school. The meeting has been called by William Waterloo coach for the purpose of arranging preliminary details regarding training so that practice can be started immediately after school opens.

Chletics will be pushed harder this year in an effort to create teams in football and basketball which will come more favorably with the teams of several years ago. The basketball teams for the last few years were organizations which the smallest high school could defeat without trouble.

Old Times Will Play

At least three Kaukauna men will be represented in the Fox river all-star baseball team which plays combined looks Sunday at the park. The combined looks is scheduled to take place in the Combined Looks park. The men are Earl Roth, Hank Minkhedge and Ben Hurkman. There are two or three men to each position in the Old Times lineup and they should have no trouble in sending fresh players on the field.

The afternoon will be devoted to games and contests. There will be dancing in the evening.

SLIM CHANCE OF FINDING OIL HERE

State Geologist Doubts if Oil Ever Will Be Found in Wisconsin.

Special to Post-Crescent

Madison, Wis.—There is just one chance in a million that a pool of oil may be struck in Wisconsin, declared W. O. Hotchkiss, state geologist today, despite the fact that periodically reports are circulated of the striking of oil here or there. The last reported "strike" was at Oxfordville in this synod of more than 400. About 95 new members were added in the last year.

This week Mr. Hotchkiss received a bottle of dolomite from a firm in Plymouth with the explanation that a farmer near Sheboygan Falls, Sheboygan county was drilling for oil that he had gone down about 350 feet and that the sample sent for inspection had a very strong odor of oil or gas. Neither could be detected from the sample of dolomite or shale received and there was no indication that oil would be struck by continued drilling.

It has been reported that the farmer in question was informed a decade ago that in ten years a swarm of bees would form in a tree under which his son would be playing and that by drilling there oil would be struck. It is said that last fall while the little son of the farmer was playing near a tree his attention was attracted by a swarm of bees and that he called the attention of his mother to them. The farmer then remembered the prediction of the clairvoyant ten years before and early this spring arranged to drill for the oil.

According to Prof. Hotchkiss the only possible place in Wisconsin that oil could be located would be between Lake Winnebago and Lake Michigan where some dolomite is found but that is the only indication ever discovered that oil might exist.

WESTERN DOPE KING IS SENT TO PRISON

Superior, Wis.—Frank Inzco, termed by federal authorities "dope" king of the northwest, was sentenced to one year and a day in Leavenworth prison by Judge C. Z. Luse in federal court following his conviction on seven of eight counts in an indictment charging the sale of drugs here.

Several thousands of dollars worth of opium, cocaine and morphine, were found in his residence by federal investigators.

A jury returned a verdict of guilty two hours after the case had been placed in their hands.

The phantom figure of a "dope queen," rumors of whom federal agents had heard, took definite character during the trial of the "king." It was alleged by several witnesses, drug addicts, that the "queen" resided in Winnipeg, Can., and that through her many had become addicted to the drug habit.

It was alleged that the "queen" visited this city last winter bringing with her several "slaves" and an unlimited quantity of dope.

Mrs. John Burch, who has been visiting Appleton friends for several days, returned home to Ashland Friday.

GRADE POTATOES BEFORE SHIPMENT

New Law Requiring Grading of "Spuds" Will Be Strictly Enforced.

Inspection and grading of potatoes before shipment from Appleton or any other point in the state is required by an order recently issued by the new department of markets which was created by the legislature in its last session.

According to the order, the shipper must state the grade of the potatoes on the bill of lading and the seller must make the same statement on an invoice. The new regulation applies to potatoes sold in sacks of 100 pounds or more and to bulk shipments in freight cars. Cabbages and apples also must be graded before shipment.

Official certificate of grade signed by a qualified inspector will be required upon every shipment, the order states. Fifty-seven shipping points in the state will have inspection service and at minor points the dealer will be licensed to inspect his own potatoes, subject to penalty for misgrading.

This method of grading is similar to inspection of grains required by the federal grain standards act. It is said to be the most effective method of enforcing legal standards. State standards in regard to the grading of potatoes, honey, cabbage and apples, have been revised and the changes are effective Sept. 5.

A. C. Reis, assistant attorney general, declares the new regulations are to protect the seller and consumer of Wisconsin potatoes against misrepresentations of quality.

THE STAGE

"Listen To Me" Seldom has the author of a musical extravaganza staged his own composition, therefore when LeComte and Fleisher arranged with Charles George the author of "Listen To Me," they established a precedent. In a recent interview Mr. Fleisher said: "My reason for engaging George to produce the play was this—I knew he had considerable knowledge of stagecraft through experience as actor and director, and it only stands to reason that the man who dreams the story writes the book, lyrics and music through inspiration, designs the costumes and superintends the construction of production is far more capable to produce results than any other stage manager could possibly achieve the result of Mr. Fleisher's philosophy is exemplified in the revolution of "Listen To Me," where an excellent cast minutely fits the characters they portray, re-incarnating the visions into living beings. It is certain that this gorgeous production with its costly costumes, marvelous novelties and artistic enrichment will reach nation wide success. There are more than a dozen musical gems in "Listen To Me" among which are, "Where is the girl for me?" "Our Bungalow in Wintertime" "Letters" "Kewpie Kandy Doll" "Doctor Cupid" "The Devilish Blues" and "Man and Six Temptations." These have been stamped favorites with the public and will be rendered throughout the presentation of the Appleton Theatre Tuesday, August 30.

LAKE CONDITION NOW IS WORST THIS SEASON

Lake Winnebago is filled with green vegetable matter as never before and the odor in many places along the shore where a heavy coating is decaying in the sun is very annoying. A riverman who came up by boat from Oshkosh Thursday said the water was so filled with the substance that it interfered with the progress of the boat by getting in the propeller. The condition at the north end of the lake for the past week has been such as to make bathing almost impossible and the resort people are patiently waiting for a north wind or for a heavy shower to clear the water. The level of the lake is exceedingly low at present.

Men Don't Want To Accept Silver Dollars As "Change"

There are still a few old-fashioned folks in Appleton who would rather put their trust in silver money than in paper, according to Miss Alice Kuchenecker, cashier in a College-ave. shop.

When these people have change coming after making a purchase, they always request silver. A few of them have seemed more particular in this respect during the last few weeks. Miss Kuchenecker declares that it is hard to get a man to accept a silver dollar if he can get a paper one instead. Very few men carry purses, she said, but practically all of them have bill-books and that is why they prefer paper money.

Even most women hesitate to accept silver if greenbacks are at hand. Miss Kuchenecker has observed. They dislike silver because it jingles in their handbag and they don't like to imitate a set of Japanese chimes for the benefit of the general public.

Foks don't want silver dollars, said Joseph C. VanHandel. They won't take them unless they must. Some women will take silver dollars, without demur but men seldom will. It is far easier to get a woman to accept silver dollars in the winter than in summer and the reason for that is very simple. It is easier to handle a silver dollar with a gloved hand than to manipulate paper, so women are more apt to carry coins in winter. In the summer they would rather have paper.

"We have one customer who will never accept paper money in change. He always demands silver and he is a bank employee, too. If we run short of paper money for change of course we have to use silver but we can hand out silver with more freedom to women than would be possible if we were dealing with men. The men simply won't carry silver. It's heavy and it cuts holes in their pockets."

Paul Kitchman is of the opinion that there is far less silver money in circulation now than there was a few years ago. He believes the public has become educated to carrying paper money because it is easier to carry and so much lighter. There is no reason for alarm over the apparent shortage of paper money, he thinks, because there is lots of silver at the banks and anyone can have it in preference to paper money if he insists.

Joseph Ornstein said that he handles just as much silver now as he ever did. He finds that whether change is in silver or paper it makes no difference with women customers.

All the merchants agreed that as far as they are concerned they would like to see more silver in circulation for the reason that silver may be counted quicker and easier and there is less chance of mistake than where so much paper money is handled. Paper bills adhere to each other, and it takes considerable time to count them because each bill must be carefully scanned.

BUILD FIELDHOUSE FOR USE OF COLLEGE FOOTBALL PLAYERS

Lawrence Field Is Put in Excellent Condition for Football Season.

When Lawrence college football players hustle out to Lawrence field for their first workout after the opening of school they will find a completely equipped fieldhouse for their convenience. Construction of the building was started this week and it will be finished long before school opens.

The footballers also will find many other improvements at the athletic field. The playing field has been moved further to the center and now is marked with the center of the black and white line, with a strand of barbed wire on top, surrounds the playing field to keep out spectators who heretofore have crowded onto the field while games were in progress. The ground has been leveled, brush and debris removed and now compares favorably with the best in the state. Other improvements are planned for next year. They were not made this summer because time was too short.

Arrangements also will be made to erect bleachers along the south side of the field. Heretofore attendance at the games has been cut down because no seating facilities were provided. It is proposed to erect temporary bleachers seating about 1,000 persons on the track along the south fence. Automobiles will be barred from the field this season.

The fieldhouse will be equipped with shower baths, toilet rooms and a place for the coach, an office for the team surgeon, rubbing room and two large locker rooms. One locker room will be used for Lawrence men and the other for visiting players. During the week the visitors' room will be used by the second string crew.

Eight shower baths are to be installed and other conveniences are planned. There will be individual lockers for every player—nearly 100 will be provided. Equipment will be kept in the field house and it is probable some of the boys will sleep there nights in order to protect the property.

Alexander gymnasium at the college also has been renovated this summer. Shower baths, locker rooms and offices have been redecorated and the entire building has been cleaned. Arrangements will be made to use a bowling alley in the building as a locker room for the first basketball and track squads.

The college authorities are about ready for the opening of the athletic season and are looking forward to the best teams in the history of the school.

Matty Won't See World Series

HE'S A CHAMPION AT CHECKERS

By Edward M. Thierrey
Saranac Lake, N. Y.—Christy Mathewson can't leave here for another year—at least.

The baseball veteran here is winning his fight for life, but it's a slow, grueling battle against the white plague.

"Yes, Christy is better," his wife told me when I called at the "rental" apartment on the fourth floor of the apartment house at the hill overlooking the village and lake.

The doctor was making his daily visit. Though "Big Sam" is able to take occasional automobile rides he is not permitted to receive visitors.

Mrs. Mathewson, a tall, pleasant-faced woman has nursed the famous pitcher ever since the germ of tuberculosis first threatened his life.

Not This Year

"No, he won't be able to attend the world's series this fall," Mrs. Mathewson said, smiling a bit sadly. "He would like to—but it is out of the question."

"Last winter we thought we could leave here by spring. In the spring, we counted on full recovery by this fall. Now—well, it will be next year, anyway."

Christy Mathewson as He Looked When He Was King of Them All.

Mrs. Mathewson wished to send word to baseball fans and players and friends generally of Christy thinking them for the evidence of high regard in which he is held.

Thoughtful Friends

She sent full appreciation of the number of friends the baseball veteran has come on his birthday, August 12. Messages came from all over the country. Matty was 41 that day.

"There wasn't much celebration," said Mrs. Mathewson. "Christy had an automobile ride for a birthday present. Our son, Christy, Jr., came from the boys' camp as is attending."

Matty doesn't talk much baseball, his wife said.

Heart in Game

"It is the subject closest to his heart," she said, "but we talk of it a little. Yes, he read about the Chicago players being acquitted. His opinion? Well, he doesn't say much. But he felt the baseball scandal keen. It was a blow to his ideals."

"He thinks the accused players were punished by the ignorance of the trial and the ostracization."

"Yes, he believes Judge Landis has ruled wisely in saying they shall not come back into baseball."

Matty was 14 months in bed.

Gains Slowly

He came to Saranac Lake a year ago last July in a very weakened condition.

A slow rest cure ensued and last winter there was a crisis when it was decided to collapse one of his lungs.

In the spring he was able to play an occasional game of checkers. For years he has been a champion at the game. Checkers and fishing are his greatest recreations.

Auto Rides

Early in the summer he took his first automobile ride and now he rides every day for about an hour. He hopes soon to be able to do some angling in the nearby waters.

Christy, Jr., is 14. His mother said he "wasn't so crazy about baseball."

His dad just now is wireless, and he has a complete outfit.

She and Matty are proudest of the fact that last term Christy, Jr., took first prize in Latin in school.

Veterans Set The Pace

Old heads are still carrying the athletic load.

The year of 1931 has been a veteran year.

When it comes right down to a question of picking out the best, in any sport the experienced players are the ones to rely on.

The veterans have won all the trophies.

New and younger stars flash forth for a time. For the moment we think they are world beaters. Then they fade into the background as the old "sags" go to the head of the class when the real test comes.

Our Best

In baseball, Ty Cobb is still blooming. Harry Heilmann his pupil, is out hitting him by a few points but Ty is the more valuable man to his team.

Jim Barnes, who has been a star on the links for years won the national open.

No one has supplanted William Tilden and William Johnston in tennis.

Molla Bjurested Mallory, Mary K. Browne, Mrs. May Sutton Bundy—all champions of the past—fought it out at Forest Hills for the supremacy.

Young talent in sport promises much, but it hasn't aged enough yet to bring home the bacon.

Percentage

Putting boxing on a percentage basis in New York is a precedent that should be followed everywhere.

No fighter is worth more than he can draw.

Big purses look good in print. They hurt the game by sowing fans on the commercial side of the game.

When a fighter gets his dirty before he steps into the ring he has lost the incentive to do his best.

Pay them after they fight on what they draw, promoters, and you'll be shaking hands with better boxing.

Commentable

Bill Killefer has signed a young pitcher who doesn't play Sunday baseball.

He is Victor Keene son of a Philadelphia minister.

The boy has been offered his stakes to pitch on Sunday but he won't cross his father's wishes.

There's something very commendable about such a fellow.

The boy has won 36 victories in a row this summer in college and semi pro ball.

TENNIS TOURNEY HERE CALLED OFF KEJAWA JUMPS TO STEVENS POINT TEAM

The district tennis championship tournament which was to have been held in this city under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and which was to include Oshkosh and Seymour has been called off because of the inability of the local association to get ready for the project.

Instead plans will be made for a dual meet between the three clubs interested in which one game will be played in Appleton and a return game will be played in another city.

R. H. Starkey, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., who is in charge of the arrangements, will try to have a dual meet with Oshkosh for next week. The game will be played either in Oshkosh or in this city.

The Stevens Point team of the Wisconsin Valley league is congratulating itself upon the acquisition of a new catcher in Stanley Kejawa, who has been catching for the Oshkosh team in the Fox River Valley league for several seasons.

In signing Kejawa for the remainder of the season, Manager Eagleburger of Stevens Point, points out that Kejawa has a fine record as a backstop.

He declares that Kejawa's work last year enabled Stevenson of Oshkosh to pitch the team to the Fox River Valley league pennant.

Kejawa will play his first game with Stevens Point on Sunday against Tomahawk.

MRS. JONES SLATED TO WIN WESTERN GOLF MEET

By United Press Leased Wire
Westmoreland, Ill.—Contestants for the women's golf crown of the mid-west have dwindled to two Chicago women, who will play the final match here Saturday. They are Mrs. Melvin Jones of Olympia Fields and Mrs. J. W. Douglas, Westmoreland.

Mrs. Jones is generally conceded to have a slight advantage over her opponent. She won consistently under pressure Friday in defeating Miss Frances

VICTORY GOES TO TEAM WHICH GETS MOST LUCK BREAKS

Oshkosh and Appleton Evenly Matched for Season's "Crucial" Game.

One new man will appear in the Oshkosh lineup Sunday when the Overalls clash with the Brands at Brandt park. He is Kammerer, a catcher who succeeds Stanley Kejawa, now with the Stevens Point team of the Wisconsin River Valley league.

Kammerer has played in the valley league and is an excellent backstop and a hitter.

If weather conditions are at all satisfactory on Sunday a record breaking crowd will jam into the park. Preparations are being made to accommodate more people than attended the game with Menasha a few weeks ago when a new attendance record was established.

Hank Schultz is expected here this afternoon to rest up before the final Oshkosh game and his mates are hoping for warm weather. Hank is at his best when the mercury is hovering near the top of the thermometer while Stevenson seems to do pretty well when the weather is a little cooler.

Manager Murphy has had his boys out for practice several nights this week. He is teaching them to lay down hits and put more snap into their infield play. Fans have noticed a decided improvement in the quality of fielding by the team in the last few weeks and this is largely due to the work to which the men are subjected.

Oshkosh, too, has been working out nights, according to word from the Stevens City. The teams will be about as evenly matched as two squads can be and the victory probably will go to the team getting the most breaks in luck.

EASTERN TENNIS STARS PLAYING FOR TITLE

By United Press Leased Wire
Boston, Mass.—The east Saturday regains national doubles lawn tennis honors.

William Tilden and Vincent Richards are to meet R. Norris Williams and Watson M. Washburn in the finals of the national annual championships at Longwood, this afternoon.

Arnold Jones of Providence, by defeating Morton Bernstein of New York in straight sets won the right to meet Vincent Richards, playing through junior champion, in the junior finals today.

Molla B. Mallory, partnered with Tilden, will meet Mary K. Browne and William M. Johnston, in the final round of the national mixed doubles championships.

Watching The Scoreboard

Four straight for the Giants from the league leading Pirates.

"Shufflin' Phil" Douglas turned back the Glosnites for the second time this series.

Hamilton held New York to five hits but a screaming triple by Frisch, scored Rinehart made them worth more than Pittsburgh's ten.

The Boston Braves' chances of coping were rendered practically nil by the Cardinals fourth straight taken at Beantown.

Eddie Roush, star outfielder of the Cincinnati Reds, is probably lost to Moran for the rest of the season. He tore a ligament sliding into second at Philadelphia yesterday.

The Cubs made seventeen hits, beating Brooklyn 12 to 3.

GREEN BAY WANTS TO GET IN GRID LEAGUE

Chicago—The American Professional Football association meets here Saturday to draw up a schedule for the 1932 season. The applications of Minneapolis and Green Bay Wis., for association franchises will also be considered.

Manitowoc Golfers Playing Here Today

Manitowoc golfers are here Saturday for a match game with the Riverview Country club stars. Play was to start this morning.

No matches were played in the club championship flight on Friday. The first rounds must be played before Monday.

Missed Old Tower

"We missed the old sulphite tower and were not sure we were on the right road," said Richard L. Ryan of Joliet, Ill., who arrived in Appleton Thursday over the barby road in company with his brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ryan of Milwaukee. The two men were former Appleton boys, sons of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ryan and were not aware the tower had been torn down.

The young men returned from Appleton twenty years ago and so many changes have taken place since then they scarcely recognized the place.

WALTER HAGEN WINS WESTERN GOLF TITLE

Cleveland, O.—Walter Hagen of New York won the western open championship here on Friday with a score of 237. The New York player, although not up amongst the low score men on the first day, came back strong at the finish and won the western golfing honors.

Jock Hutchison, former title holder, ran Hagen a close second, being five strokes in the rear. Emmett French, Youngstown, who set the golfing world agog on the first day with a sensational score of 65 for this round, came in third with 281.

Bobby Jones, the Atlanta youth, tied with Joe Kirkwood for fourth with 295.

The morning round on Friday was played under difficulties, as a near gale was blowing over the course. The wind was so strong that a tree near the ninth green was blown over and the golfers were experiencing difficulties in placing their shots.

PICKS TEAM HE ONCE SERVED TO WIN FLAG

Sioux Falls, S. D.—Fred Carisch, former catcher for both Pittsburgh and Cleveland, predicts pennants for them this fall.

Carisch is now manager of the Sioux Falls club in the Dakota league.

"I'm picking the Indians and Pirates for the pennant winners this fall," says Carisch.

Understudy

Carisch was just a kid when he served as catcher for Pittsburgh in 1903-4 and part of 1906.

Ed. Phelan was the regular backstop and Carisch was his understudy.

Pittsburgh's pitchers then included "Deacon" Phelan, Sam Leever and Vic Willis.

Honus Warner was in his heyday as a shortstop and slugger.

It was in 1912-13 and 14 that Carisch caught for Cleveland under the Joe Birmingham regime.

Caught Cy

"I used to catch Cy Falkenberg when he pitched his famous emery ball. Cy got away with it until his secret leaked out after his jump to the Reds."

"I also caught Gregg, the southpaw who struck out 19 Pittsburgh batters in a post season exhibition game."

"The wish may be parent to the thought that Pittsburgh and Cleveland are going to clean up. But I like both clubs and I'm picking them."

Four of the present Indians—Jack Graney, Doc Johnston, Steve O'Neill and Guy Morton—were with Cleveland when Carisch wore an Indian uniform.

NORTHWESTERNS CANCEL GAMES; PLAYERS GONE

The Northwestern Railway Co.'s baseball team has cancelled all its games scheduled for the next two weeks because three members, Basing, Kubitz and Wheeler, are absent from the city. Upon their return it is possible that several games will be played before the team disbands for the season.

TO SEND DELEGATES TO CHARITIES MEET

Catholic Organizations Discuss Representation at Milwaukee Conference.

Representatives of 11 Catholic societies of Appleton met in Knights of Columbus hall Friday evening to make arrangements for sending a delegation to the national conference of Catholic charities which will be held in Milwaukee Sept. 18 to 21.

Fifty people attended the meeting. The societies represented were the Catholic Order of Foresters, St. Joseph's society, Knights of Columbus, Ladies Auxiliary of the Catholic Order of Foresters, Women's Catholic Order of Foresters, Sacred Heart society, Holy Name society of St. Mary parish, Christian Mothers of St. Mary parish, Ladies' Aid society of St. Joseph parish, St. Aloysius Young Men's society and Catholic Knights of Wisconsin.

It was decided that each of the societies should separately elect one or more delegates to the conference at its next regular meeting.

VICTOR ARTISTS WILL SING HERE

Eight famous artists whose music is familiar to hundreds of Appleton people through the medium of Victor records will appear in person in Lawrence Memorial chapel Sept. 28 under auspices of the Carroll Music shop. This will be the first program of the fall season in the chapel.

These artists are arranging book-ings in several of the principal cities of the country and only a few Wisconsin cities will entertain them.

Here are the artists who will appear on the program:

Henry Burr, tenor; Milly Murray, tenor-comedian; Albert Campbell, tenor; John Meyer, baritone; Frank Croton, bass; Monroe Silver, monologist; Fred Van Eps, banjoist; Frank Baria, pianist. These men make up the Sterling trio and the Peerless quartet and will appear in ensemble numbers as well as individually.

AUTO KITS BUGGY; TWO ARE INJURED

Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Bleck of the town of Greenville were cut and bruised Thursday evening when their buggy was struck by an automobile on the road east of Hortonville Thursday evening and they were thrown out of the vehicle. The automobile hurried away and no assistance was offered the injured people. When the collision occurred the horse became frightened and ran away but was caught at Greenville. The buggy was badly damaged and the police and a search is being made for the owner of the automobile.

SIX HAPPY BOYS SEND CALVES TO STATE FAIR

The little pig that went to market may have been happy but his happiness did not surpass that of the ten stock calves which went from Appleton to the state fair. The ten calves, nine pure bred Holsteins and one pure bred Guernsey, left Appleton by freight car Friday evening and arrived at the state fair grounds at 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

But if the calves were happy, owners of six of them were exultant as they left Appleton Saturday to follow their prototypes to the fair grounds. Richard Janssen, Glenn Anderson, Armand Dehberstein, George Paltzer, Clarence Schroeder and Dale Kirklin were the six calf club boys who made the trip. Three of them went by rail and three accompanied Paul O. Nyhus who left by automobile at 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

The boys were among the winners in the First National Bank calf club contest which was held last Saturday and as a reward for the honors won at that time, all their expenses are being paid by the bank. The six will remain at the fair all week to look after their exhibits.

TEACHERS COMPETING IN PRIZE SONG CONTEST

School teachers of Outagamie-co. are sharpening their pencils and their wits these days in an effort to win the $25 which is being offered the teacher in the state who can write the best state song. The contest is being conducted by the Wisconsin Teachers' association and will close Sept. 20. Another prize of $25 will be given the teacher who can write the best music to the prize-winning song.

Manuscripts submitted to the Madison office of the association will be judged by Prof. Peter W. Dykema of the university of Wisconsin, Prof. Ott Messner of the Milwaukee state normal, President A. M. Royce of the Platteville Normal, Supt. S. E. Tobey of Kauaui and Supt. W. F. Colburn of Rhinelander.

The song receiving the prize will be introduced at the state teachers' meeting to be held in Milwaukee, Nov. 2 to 4.

Fido Is Having Hard Time With Mange Epidemic

Poor dog Tray was probably an object of pity but Appleton dogs afflicted with mange are just as deserving of sympathy. Veterinarians are of the opinion that mange among dogs is more prevalent this year than it has been in some time. They have also noticed that the disease is more aggravated, due to the exceptionally warm summer.

Mange is a skin disease. In various forms it attacks dogs, horses, wild animals and even human beings. It causes an intense itching which the animal relieves by rubbing, biting or scratching. In these various processes the hair is torn out, the skin bleeds and the appearance of the animal is anything but pleasing. Mange is contagious only by actual contact. This makes it wise to isolate diseased animals.

If not treated effectively at the start, the disease is likely to become chronic and practically incurable. A few animals die with the disease but most cases can be cured if the proper remedies are applied. Veterinarians warn people against using pine tar or crude oil in treating the disease as it may do more harm than good. They say that dogs have been known to die where they were closed in a small space after having pine tar applied. Only external remedies are effective in overcoming the disease.

MISSION FESTIVAL AT BLACK CREEK CHURCH

Members of the Immanuel Lutheran church of Black Creek will hold their annual mission festival at the church on Sunday.

Three services will be held during the day. The Rev. A. Habermann of Boudel will preach at the morning service at 10 o'clock. The Rev. A. F. Zich of Green Bay will preach the afternoon sermon at 2:30 and the Rev. E. Sterz of Shiocton will conduct the evening service at 7:30. The evening service will be in English.

Chicken dinner and supper will be served in the church basement by the Ladies' Aid society of the church. Collections will be taken at all services for the benefit of the church missions. Arrangements for the day's program were made by the Rev. A. F. Herzfeldt, pastor of the church.

HAVE UNTIL NEXT YEAR TO ACCEPT U. S. OFFER

Former service men will have no opportunity of accepting the offer of vocational training under the national vocational rehabilitation act after Dec. 16, 1922, under the time limit set by the sixty-seventh congress.

Many disabled men in this section of Wisconsin have been approved for training but have not yet signified a desire to accept its benefits. The federal vocational board is now urging these men to consider the training question seriously and admonishes others who have not filed applications for the training to do so at once.

A Mighty Important Item!

—BUY YOURS RIGHT NOW

EVERY year, at this time it is customary for coal dealers to encourage users of coal in their respective communities to lay in their supply early. This is not selfishness on their part—but a genuine interest in the welfare of the coal buying public.

If teams and trucks are lying idle during the summer months, and then worked to the utmost in Fall and Early Winter it tends to increase the overhead, which finally must be added to the original cost of the product. Do not let this additional cost become a burden to yourself.

The mines are now operating at normal capacity, distributing coal at a price that will not be any lower for some time to come. In a few months the demand will increase and become greater than the available supply, thus putting coal on the sellers market. This condition will gradually lead to an increase in price.

Consider these points well. Can you afford to hold back on your coal order and take chances on this increase in price which is liable to come at any time. Coal has now reached rock bottom prices for this season. "Early buying means"—"Economy buying." Fill your bin, and be ready as all predictions point to a very cold long winter.

Be Very Careful When Buying Your Coal

To see that you get the Genuine Article. If you burn Anthracite Coal—Do not be misled into buying a "So-Called" Hard Coal at an attractive price. This Coal is being sold here as Anthracite Coal and has the appearance—but that's all—it isn't hard coal. You can buy real genuine Anthracite coal, Solvay Coke and Soft Coal from the dealers listed below.
